We know that God is real because there is a moral standard and if there is a moral standard there is a transcendent moral truth giver. Atheists make the mistake of thinking that Christians are saying that they have no morals, which is not true. The argument is where does it come from? Without God everything is just your subjective opinion.

We can know God is real when we experience His reality. God wants us to know that He is real. One way you can find out for sure is through an experimental approach. Pray a prayer like this: "God, if you are real, show me. If you really exist, I want to know before it is too late." No one else needs to know if you prayed such a prayer. If there is no God, then He can't respond to any prayer.

If you're not sure how to seek God, why not try simply asking Him to show Himself to you? You could say something along the lines of God, if you're real, show me that you are. But believe that He could be. There's no point asking this if you're closed off to the possibility of Him being real.

~~God, Are You Real?—Shelley Ward~~

"God, if you are real, show me. If you really exist, I want to know before it is too late." No one else needs to know if you prayed such a prayer. If there is no God, then He can't respond to any prayer. If He exists, He will show you in a way that is convincing to you. But really, people who suppress the truth about God are without excuse. The Bible says that God has placed eternity in the hearts of the sons of men (see Ecclesiastes 3:11).

Pascal argues that a rational person should live as though God exists and seek to believe in God. If God does not actually exist, such a person will have only a finite loss, whereas if God does exist, he stands to receive infinite gains and avoid infinite losses. Pascal's wager was based on the idea of the Christian God, though similar arguments have occurred in other religious traditions. The original wager was set out in Pascal's posthumously published Pensées, an assembly of previously ...

You and I don't just have a mind and a body; we also have a soul or spirit — and because of that, we yearn to know God. Animals don't have this yearning — but we do, because God has implanted within our souls a longing for Himself. The psalmist put it this way: “My soul thirsts for God, for the living God” (Psalm 42:2).
